As I sat listening to everyone's stories and remembrances at Pat's Celebration of Life, there were such incredible qualities that tied every story together. Pat's service and caring shown to others, most especially to her own children. Complete love and devotion. Her sense of humor, adventure and fun that made her the kind of mom that all the others kids wanted to hang out with as well! While I didn't know Pat very well personally, I have always known her through Darci. I can tell you that Darci is all of these same things to the people in her life, the most loyal and giving friend someone could ever have. She loves all kids and is always the first one to hug and comfort and be silly with any little one. She serves her community through various charities, and was right there by her mom's side through her years of battling Parkinson's. She had a great teacher, and I think it's just so special that all those qualities that Pat so exemplified are going to live on in her beloved daughter...and in all her children and grandchildren. Her legacy lives on, and she will surely always be cherished and treasured in the hearts of all that loved her.

So many memories of your mom - too many to narrow it down to one. Love and service just flowed from her - she saw a need and she filled it. I remember her sense of humor too. In 1993 we shared a dorm room at BYU Education Week. We were in a building that didn't have air conditioning and it was HOT, so at night we tried to leave the window open. Campus security told us twice to close the window (for safety reasons) and finally threatened to kick us out if we didn't comply. We laughed about what our kids would say if we were kicked out of BYU. Thank you, Pat for the memories and the Christ-like example you set. Cathie Magnuson my mother was a wonderful person. she fought Parkinson's disease for many years before it took her life just before her 70th birthday. i will never forget the love she had for me and my siblings. one of her favorite sayings was i have 5 children 2 were adopted but i forget which 2. she helped people how ever she could whether it was giving them a ride somewhere or babysitting their kids or a place to stay when they didnt have anywhere to go. it was hard to see her heath decline these past couple of years because it was not the person she really was. you will be missed very much mom and i will always save the corner piece of cake for you.

Pat was a stepmother to me while she was married to my father, Martin Davis. She NEVER made me feel like a stepchild, only a child that was loved and cared for. Even when I was doing wrong (which was MOST of the time back then) she was there for me, helping me, and being patient with me in hoping for me to turn my life around. Now that I finally have, I am too late to share this life with her. That is my only regret, that I did not share more time with her these last years. It was hard for me to see the decline, and like the chicken that I am, I turned away instead of coming forward and helping like I should have. I am SORRY, Darci, Lindsey, Kyle, Derek, and Phil, for not being there more in the end. I love you all and am thankful to have been in Pat's life and be blessed by the many things she helped me with, taught me, and the happiness she brought into my father's life. My heart breaks knowing that Pat will no longer be here to comfort her children and grandchildren like she enjoyed doing! LOVE YOU ALL!!!Marlen Davis

Darci, your mother left Christmas gifts & Christmas dinner under our tree one year while we were gone. My husband didn't have work at the time & with three small children at home, money was tight. She was truly a Christlike person. I will never forget her thoughtfulness. She was loved by many & she likewise loved many around her, especially her children & grandchildren. :-)
